Information

Eskişehir

Geographical Info

Eskişehir is at Northwest of Interior Anatolia region. The city is neighbor to Black Sea region at North, Marmara region at Northwest, Aegean region at Southwest. A little part of Seyitgazi, one of the counties of Eskişehir, is under the influence of Aegean region and the whole Sarıcakaya County and some part of the city center with Mihallıççık County are under the influence of Black Sea region. However, the geographical structure of Eskişehir to that of Interior Anatolia region.

Area of the province which is surrounded by Bozdağ and Sündiken Mountains at North, Emirdağ at South, Orta Asya Valley at East, Türkmen Mountain at West, is about 13653 km<sup>2</sup>. That much of area covers 1.8% of Turkey. Elevation of the city center from sea is 792m.

Eskişehir province is surrounded by Emirdağ and İnsaniye counties of Afyonkarahisar at South, Yunak county of Konya at Southeast, Polatlı, Nallıhan and Beypazarı counties of Ankara at East, Göyök county of Bolu at Northwest, Gölpaazarı, Söğüt, Bozüyük counties of Bilecik and Kütahya province at West.

About 22% of the province area is composed of mountains while plains have %26 share of the area.

Topographical structure of Eskişehir province which is Northwest corner of Interior Anatolia, is consists of plains in Sakarya and Porsuk river basins and mountains surrounding those plains. Bozdağ-Sündiken mountain chain from North, Türkmen Mountain located at the east corner of Interior West Anatolian threshold, Yazılıkaya Plateau and Emirdağ from West and South, surround plains of river basins.

The valleys generally became deep as a result of wearing of outer factors for a long time. Shoulders of valleys have a little inclination and wearing of shoulder is strong. Top of the hills are pressed and round except new formations in the province where closed basin situation is not observed. There is continuous slope towards to sea.

Web: <http://www.turkaf.org.tr/>

Mountains surround plains of province from different sides. The shapes that are formed as a result of different kinds of wearing and dissolution are generally clear in mountainous areas. There are plateaus lying from plains to mountains in different elevations. There are Bozdağ and Sündiken Mountains that are Interior Anatolian mountain chains at North of the province on the direction of west-east and the extensions goes to Sakarya river that constitutes province border.

Sivhisar Mountains which begin inside the arc of Sakarya, at Southeast corner of Eskişehir province, lies in the direction of Southeast-Northwest direction. Sivrihisar Mountains lying towards Kaymaz sub district is located on a plateau which has a threshold appearance.

After passing Kaymaz sub district, high hills are observed on the wide threshold which has a plain appearance. That structure of wavy area with plain like appearance continues to West. That structure forms Türkmen Mountains at the South of Sarisu Plain and unites with Domaniç Mountains outside the borders of province. The most important altitude between Kaymaz sub district and Eskişehir city center is the foot of Koca Kır Plateau going down to Porsuk Plain. While going to West from Porsuk Creek, one reaches to Küçük Türkmen Mountain at 1255m height. At far more West there are Kozdoğru and Göktepe hills.

The real Türkmen Mountain begins at South of Porsuk Dam and lies to Sakarya Plain with its extensions. The highest point of province is 1825m, the top of Türkmen Mountain. Other important high points are: Kırğıl, Kuyu, Yaylacık, Deve Eriği, Deve hills and Oluk Mountain.

History

Eskişehir is one of the oldest settlements (3500 BC) in this region. It was founded in the 3rd millennium BC by the Phrygians along the banks of the Porsuk River and its banks. The city has many places of interest; the Archaeological Museum which houses the Phrygian objects and sculptures; the Ottoman House Museum which is a very fine example of the 19th century local architecture and has many local ethnographical items. There are three significant tombs around Eskişehir: the Sheik Edibali Tomb, the Kumbet Baba Tomb, and the Cupola of Alesmah. The Phrygian Valley, the Falcon Fortress, the Unfinished Monument, and the Gerdek Rock are other historical sites to visit. In Eskişehir you will frequently see items made of meerschaum since this is the place where it originates. You will see the best meerschaum stone works at the Meerschaum Museum.

The Rug and Seyitgazi Museums have many examples of different kinds of kilims and hand-knit and stockings.

In Eskişehir it is possible to have good time at Sakaryabasi where there is a spring lake and fresh fish restaurants.

Outside Eskişehir is Sivrihisar (Justinianopolis), full of typical Ottoman houses and famous for its kilims. Seyit Battal Gazi (Nakoleia) is 45 kms south of Eskişehir. The mosque complex on the hill was built to pay homage to the Islamic hero Seyit Battal.

The Yunus Emre Village is the burial place of the world famous poet of the 13th century, Yunus Emre. There is a commemorative tomb built for him as well as a museum, and celebrations are held here every May.

"Birth Festivities" which are dedicated to Nasreddin Hoca, a humor master and folk philosopher, is organized in Eskisehir every year in the last week of June.

BALLIHISAR (PESSINUS)

117 kms from Ankara, on the Eskisehir road and 16 kms to the right you will find the Phrygian city, Pessinus, its contemporary name is Ballihisar. There you will see the Temple of Cybele - the mother goddess, and an open-air museum housing interesting sculptures found in this ancient Phrygian cult center, which was built in the 10th century BC.

MIDAS

One of the most important settlement centers of the Phrygians, between the 8th- and 6th-centuries BC, was Midas, situated 66 kms south of Eskisehir.

At this place of distant past, stands the ancient city with an acropolis overlooking the lower land. On its northwestern side are two open-air cult temples, carved into the rock, and the most interesting sight in the area. There are rock tombs and Phrygian inscriptions nearby, and a recently discovered underground tunnel which links the site to the valley extending below. The Midas Monument which was built in dedication to Cybele lies to the northwest of the ancient city.

Three tombs in the environs of Midas which were found at Kucuk Yazilikaya, Sutunlu Kale and Doganli Kale are especially remarkable,. Kumbet and Deveboynu are the other towns close to Midas, and visitors can enjoy the Phrygian monuments spread over these neighboring lands.
